

Letter of Invitation: Inviting Family Members and Friends to Canada

You might be planning to invite family members and/or friends to come visit you in Canada, perhaps for significant moments in your academic career such as graduation ceremonies. When your family and/or friends are submitting applications for visas to Canada, they may be asked for a letter of invitation from the person they are going to visit in Canada. This is called a Letter of Invitation and should be completed by you, the student.

NBCC does not provide any documents for visa applications for family members of students. Instead, to include in their application for a visitor visa. This letter comes directly from you and NBCC does not need to sign or stamp this letter.

Here are a few resources for writing a letter of invitation for your family members to include in their application for a visa:
